LEGAL ADVICE SURVEY - AUTUMN 2018

More than 27,000 people entered immigration detention in the UK in 2017.

Last year, BID helped 5,941 people apply for bail or challenge their deportation.

One of BID's key aims is to improve access to justice for detainees. To help with that, and to improve our own advice service, BID speaks directly to detainees twice each year so that we can document their experiences of getting legal advice while in detention.

More than 1 in 5 detainees surveyed have NEVER had a legal representative while in detention.

Just over half of those surveyed currently have a legal representative.

...of detainees without a legal representative cited money as the main reason they were unable to get legal assistance.

Over half of the detainees surveyed had been moved to an Immigration Removal Centre after serving a prison sentence (53%).

Just 7 out of 40 detainees received any independent advice about their immigration case while they were in prison.

Just 13% of those who had an appointment with the legal aid solicitor in detention received specific advice about their case.

83% of those who had used the internet to re-search their casereported that they had been blocked from accessing websites that might help them with their immigration case.

37% of those surveyed have seen or read BID's self-help materials of detainees say that talking to BID helped them better understand how to apply for bail.

92%

94% said it was easy to contact BID. Our helpline for detainees is open from 10-12, Monday to Thursday

The Autumn 2018 Survey is the 16th conducted by BID since BID first began surveying immigration detainees in 2010 twice a year regarding their access to legal representation. A total of 76 detainees were interviewed in April 2018. Detainees held in prisons were not included in this interview sample. 88% (n=67) were male and 12% (n=9) were female. The sample were detained at the following IRCs: Brook House (n=5); Campsfield House (n=3); Colnbrook (n=11); Harmondsworth (n=30); Morton Hall (n=18); Yarl's Wood (n=9). Each of the detainees had previously been in contact with BID, and has signed letters of authority consenting to the disclosure of their anonymised information to further BID's research work. The sample was smaller than in previous years because at the time of the survey, there were fewer people in detention and as a result fewer BID clients to contact.

BID would like to thank staff and students at the BPP Law School Pro Bono Centre for their assistance in carrying out the survey.
