Practices of Urban Inclusion: Collaborative learning programme

April 2021

Architecture Sans Frontières UK is pleased to offer two funded placements on the forthcoming Practices of Urban Inclusion programme, taking place this May to October 2021.

This course forms part of the Erasmus Plus programme, Desinc Live: Designing and Learning in the Context of Migration. Desinc Live is a European learning programme aimed at exploring what is needed to create cities as places of care for people with lived experience of migration, displacement and exile.

This new educational offer will bring together 18 participants from across Europe, from a wide range of social and spatial disciplines and those with lived experience of transnational migration. Through a combination of practice-based and remote learning and two live workshops in Milan and Berlin (restrictions permitting), participants will learn to strengthen their position as self-directed, reflexive and creative practitioners, and contribute to the making of more inclusive cities.

This document provides an overview of the Practices of Urban Inclusion programme offered by ASF UK. Further details can be found in the Course Prospectus for the Europe-wide programme. This programme has been developed in partnership with higher education and civil society organisations working in the fields of spatial practice and migration and refugee support in the UK, Belgium, Germany and Italy.

Programme Overview

During this programme participants will be guided through theoretical and practice-based activities aimed to help them critically reflect on their own practice and develop new ways of fostering inclusion in urban space.

Over three stages, the programme will support participants through a process of framing their practice within the spatial contexts of global migration; learning through acting in urban environments shaped by transnational migration - providing a live immersion into critical and participatory built environment practice; and reflecting on their experience with the aim of evaluating their own practice in response to the practical approaches and wider debates introduced throughout the programme.

At each stage, participants will demonstrate their learning through reflective journaling and the production of creative outputs. At the end of the programme, participants will present a piece of critical reflection on their practice and the subject of urban inclusion in the UK.

Participants will already be actively engaged in relevant fields as a practitioner in either a professional or voluntary capacity. For example, participants might be working in migrant/refugee support in areas such as housing, homelessness or urban regeneration, either in the public or third sectors or in urban policy development and research. Preference will be given to applicants with lived experience of migration.

Participants will be expected to demonstrate either a professional or personal interest in the way cities are planned/designed/built, such as in the fields of housing, geography, urban planning, urban design, architecture, visual arts, public performance or other creative disciplines engaging with urban space.

Applicants should be prepared to engage in self-directed learning and also group activities with participants from a range of backgrounds and disciplines and will be expected to produce creative outputs such as written/graphic/video/audio.

Applicants must be aged 18 or over and be available to travel during the dates outlined below, (restrictions permitting).
