Welcome to our conference!

Future of Neonatal Care - advancing the management of newborns

Your neonatal web community goes live again -
15-19 April 2020, in Vienna, Austria.

The exciting program includes a wide range of lectures and workshops by neonatal staff with real expertise.

Topics include the future of surfactant therapy, renal function impairment, treatment of seizures, intubation practices and outcomes, maternal medication and breastfeeding, music therapy and how to make great QI projects. And more!

See you in Vienna!

*Francesco Cardona, MD MSc
Medical University Vienna, Austria*

*Stefan Johansson, MD PhD
Karolinska Institutet, Sweden*

*Vicky Payne, NNP
University of Southampton, UK*

We would like to thank our Partners joining us for the Future of Neonatal Care!

Workshops 15 April and 19 April

Find more information about the workshops on <https://99nicu.org/meetup/workshops/>

| 15 April Wednesday | | |
|--|--|---|
| 0900-1200 | ACoRN – identifying infants at risk | Horacio Osioovich, Canada |
| Acute Care of at Risk Newborn (ACoRN) is an educational program developed in Canada, designed to guide any practitioner who care for sick or at-risk babies and their families. The program uses an 8-step framework to help the practitioner systematically gather information, establish priorities and intervene appropriately. | | |
| 0900-1200 | Ethical challenges in the NICU | Ulrich Körtner, Austria Joe Kaempf, USA |
| The beginning of life may pose various challenges to neonatal staff. Issues on periviability, predicting outcome in seriously ill children or genetic diagnoses may all present as ethical dilemmas. This workshop will provide a blueprint on how to deal with ethical challenges as well as allow participants to present their own cases. | | |
| 0900-1200 | POCUS – Point of care Ultrasound | Micheal Griksaitis, UK |
|  | | |
| 1300-1600 | Central venous lines | Christian Breschan, Austria |
| During this workshop, participants will be shown and practise the techniques, options and material of ultrasound-guided central venous access in particular the supraclavicular cannulation of the brachiocephalic vein in neonates and also extremely prematurely born infants. | | |
| 1300-1600 | University of CQI – how to lead meaningful, successful projects | Joe Kaempf, USA |
| This workshop will be a wide ranging discussion of quality improvement science, and specifically what it takes to design and execute innovative team projects that enhance value, safety and satisfaction. This course will demystify CQI, update the nature of evidence-based medicine, and discuss real-life examples of what to emulate, and what to avoid. | | |
| 19 April Sunday | | |
| 0900-1600 | Echocardiography for neonatologists | Yogen Singh, UK Cecile Tissot, Switzerland |
| Neonatologist performed echocardiography (NPE) is rapidly being adopted by the clinicians to make clinical decisions in the NICU. This interactive workshop provides excellent opportunity to introduction to echocardiography – two bespoke lectures on echocardiography views and functional echocardiography views will be followed by the hands-on practical session. | | |
