MANY CONGRATULATIONS

● Last weekend's Cancer Dip raises more than 4,000 euros

Pollensa.—Well, it was typical I suppose. The glorious March weather suddenly disappeared just in time for the charity dip in the sea in Puerto Pollensa to raise money for breast and ovarian cancer last weekend.

Not that it deterred the brave. At present, 4,400 euros have been raised, but there is more to come, firstly from runners taking part in next weekend's Pollensa half marathon and then on 26 April when Debbie Felstead will undergo a charity head shaving at Can Balache in Puerto Pollensa. Money raised will be divided between Cancer Support Mallorca and the Oncology department at Son Llatzer.

Funds will go towards equipment at the hospital and towards buying aids for helping people deal with chemotherapy.
