Salary: £30, 401 (pro rata)

Part time (2 days per week)

An opportunity to work at Just Psychology, a not-for-profit social enterprise that provides services to address the psychological and mental health needs of children, adults and families with a particular emphasis on cultural diversity and cultural competence. We deliver a range of services including:

- Direct therapeutic interventions with children, parents, families and other adults;
- Capacity building within statutory and third sector agencies (e.g. training, supervision, consultancy);
- Prevention and early intervention at a community level; and
- Legal work with children and parents

We value principles of equality and social justice, diversity and difference, and the rights of people to be treated with respect.

We are looking to appoint a Mental Health Practitioner or Psychotherapist to provide individual, group and family interventions for children and parents.

The successful applicant will receive regular supervision from a Practitioner Psychologist, and work alongside a team with decades of experience providing psychologically informed services within the NHS and the not-for-profit/third sector

Essential requirements include:

- Experience of working with children and families with mental health needs
- Experience of facilitating groups
- Experience of working with cultural diversity, and promoting the participation of children and families in service development.

The successful applicant must be familiar with, and adhere to, the ethos and values of Just Psychology CIC, and their professional body. They must also be able to provide valid enhanced DBS (Disclosure and Barring Service) certification.

We offer our employees:

- Flexible work-life balance and a friendly work environment
- Pension

- Continuous professional development
