Our People

All our Expert Witnesses have specific experience and training in working with adults, children and families from different cultural groups and with issues of migration and language.

Our understanding of the implications of race and culture is also informed by our own culturally diverse backgrounds as well as the relevant research literature.

We have expert witnesses who are fully conversant with living in African, Asian and European cultures and are able to produce unbiased reports.

We ensure that a clear analysis of parenting issues across cultures (including social class, race and culture of origin) has been taken into account, and that issues of race and culture are addressed fully when planning for children's futures.

All our expert witnesses are registered with the Health and Care Professions Council and/or the British Psychological Society and have enhanced DBS clearance.

We adhere to the Legal Aid Agency's rates in respect of Expert Witness fees.

Training

Our expert witnesses provide training on culturally competent assessment and intervention to a wide range of professionals including safeguarding social workers, psychologists, psychiatrists, speech and language therapists, children's guardians, etc.
