

IMAGINE NOT BEING ABLE TO SEE YOUR FAMILY.
COULD YOU COPE?

Sight loss is life-changing

Losing your sight can leave you feeling frustrated, isolated, depressed and scared. Imagine struggling to do even the simplest of everyday tasks – things that you'd always done without thinking.

Loss of sight doesn't have to mean loss of independence

Here at Wiltshire Sight we can help people through this challenging journey. We work with visually impaired people and their families all across the county to make sure they can continue to lead positive and fulfilled lives.

Face-to-face advice and support

At our community hubs across Wiltshire, our Community Sight Loss Advisors offer emotional and practical advice and guidance to help people learn to live with their sight loss. We work with other services too, such as rehabilitation teams and mental health charities; whatever it takes to put people on the right path. Of course, the recent Coronavirus outbreak is a particularly challenging time for us. But we're carrying on bringing help to where it's needed most in the safest way.

Helping people cope – and grow

We work closely with our clients to develop the skills and resources to cope and regain independence, supporting them to adapt everyday tasks like cooking a meal, brushing their teeth or even stepping out of their home. Further down the road, when clients might want to return to a hobby they loved, or pick up something new, we're ready to help them too.

Your gift could help so many people on your doorstep

A gift today would change the lives of people learning to cope with sight loss. It won't give them their sight back, but it will give them the confidence to face the future. More and more people are looking for support, however. And our resources are at capacity. Will you help us meet the growing demand?

£3

could buy audio books for our library so people with sight loss can continue to enjoy the books they love.

£7

could pay for running social groups, helping people make friends with others who understand their situation.

£10

could pay for a USB reader, which can read books and newspapers to people with sight loss.

£20

could fund the cost of a Sight Loss Advisor visiting a client who feels unable to leave their home.

£50

could pay for a technology training session, teaching people how to use their phones and tablets to help them carry out day-to-day activities.

Each of our Community Sight Loss Advisors provides 1-1 support to around 400 clients every year. With growing demand and no government funding we need your help to keep going.
